Introduction

Usually, to get a desirable score several requirements should be met. Knowledge and skill hand in hand might guarantee a certain level of success in achieving our set goals. This book contains twelve IELTS mock exams and if you want to get the most of this book, the following procedure is highly recommended.

First try to set exam conditions and with no sidetracks or interruptions work on a test or a part of a test. Then check the answer key and evaluate yourself - your weak and strong points - to figure out at which part(s) you are good or bad. This might leave a psychological impact on you to enhance your abilities and target some questions more wisely, tactfully and strategically.

Regarding the Listening Section, it is suggested that once you look at it as a test and then after checking the answer key, it is a good idea to review the test and go over the script. This might help you learn a lot through the reflections you go through. As for the Reading Section, again you should work on it like the test day; be fully alert, watchful and focused and enhance your concentration when you try to simulate test conditions. Then you might check the key and have a review to find your flaws. After doing the test, it is not a bad idea to read the reading passage as if you were reading a newspaper or journal article for pleasure. This improves your interest, eye speed, background knowledge, etc. Moreover, it can improve your vocabulary and grammar knowledge implicitly, which might help you a lot later on.

Concerning the Speaking Section, try to think about the questions, take notes and prepare yourself to provide logical, organized and natural answers to the questions. You may rehearse the possible answers and it is not a bad idea to quiz yourself, record your answers and then evaluate your performance.

As for the Writing Section, familiarity with different types of questions can do a lot. Think about the topics and write as much as you can so that you will have ample practice before the actual test day.

Finally, it should be mentioned that your success is our ultimate end and thus we wish you all best. Remember hard work pays off. Effort, perseverance, and ample practice pave the way towards success.
